Annual Review 2015-16

This is a year in which CCA began to consolidate past successes. There were over 1000 events throughout the year, demonstrating the strength of our open source policy as that figure represents primarily activity by our various partners. With a record number of visitors, we became one of ASVA's top 20 visitor attractions in Scotland for 2015 and, underlining the quality of the work presented, we won the award for Best Cultural Venue in The Glasgow Awards.

Among all those statistics there were also some very satisfying achievements for the organisation. It was our first time taking part in Disabled Access Day, an important milestone in our plans to increase diversity and access across the programme and the organisation as a whole. We also hosted the inaugural Scottish Queer International Film Festival (a very successful series of events) and towards the end of the year our exhibition Long Game by artist Merlin James had the highest admission rate of any show in the recent history of the organisation.

2015/16 marks the first full year of our new public engagement programme, organised by curator Viviana Checchia. A lively and busy series of Cooking Pot meetings caught the public imagination and have laid a foundation for future work across diverse communities and organisations in Glasgow. This programme was created in collaboration with many other partners who deserve equal credit for this work. In a similar vein, Botanic Concrete, a Garnethill based community project, relies on the interaction and enthusiasm of other groups and individuals working together with CCA.

Francis McKee, Director.

Intermedia Gallery is an independent gallery space on the second floor of CCA, funded by Glasgow City Council and managed by CCA in partnership with Glasgow Life. Funding for an exhibition is awarded to emerging artists through an annual open call for submissions. Exhibitions in 2015-16 were Ross Hamilton Frew (28 March–11 April); Gordon Douglas (14 April–19 May); Sarah Rose (12–25 July); Patrick Cole (15–30 August); Michael Barr (12–19 September); Sybren Renema (3–16 October); Michelle Hannah (14–27 November); Yaka Collective (12 December–6 January); Christopher MacInnes (23 January–5 February); Emmie McLuskey & Mary Wintour (13 February–5 March) and Elizabeth Hudson (12 March–1 April). In the gallery we also had short exhibitions as part of Comic Con and the Festival of Ian Smith.

CCA's Creative Lab is a space for artists, working in live art, contemporary performance, new theatre, time-based media and interdisciplinary art to explore new ideas and methods during a residency. Creative Lab Residencies in 2015–16 were: Andrea Neumann & Adam Campbell (April); Joanna Peace (May); Sam Derounian (June); Frances Davis (June); Claire Shallcross (July); Georgia Horgan (August); Sogol Mabadi (September); Dance House Glasgow (October); Sonic Bothy (November); Arika Porteous (December); Samuel Hasler (January) and Cooking Sections (February).

High-North, our residency exchange with Tromsø in Norway, offers Norwegian artists a residency in the UK with facilities at CCA, Glasgow Sculpture Studios and Baltic Gateshead and, in exchange, selects a UK-based artist to take up a residency in Tromsø. In 2015, the artists selected were Mai Hofstad Gunnes and Declan Clarke.

Our CALQ residency facilitates a Glasgow artist to undergo a three-month exchange with PRIM in Montreal. The exchange focuses on contemporary music, sound installation, audio art, cinema, video and digital art. In 2015, Allie Robertson was the artist-in-residence at PRIM, while Ambivalently Yours came to CCA.

Our new Public Engagement programme aims to extend access to CCA's programming and has – at its heart – the prospect of social and cultural change explored through art. There were five major public engagement strands in 2015-16: Cooking Pot; Invisible Knowledge; Curatorial Studio; Discussing Social Engagement and Botanic Concrete.
